

City of Voices 2020-2021 Report

By Isabel Robinson

“I look forward to it every week, especially during the lockdown,” says Sally. “I have become creative, and more confident in speaking English. Thank you, City of Voices. I’m very grateful for all the support, sweet memories, and the beautiful friendship I make over the years.”

Joining City of Voices, says Helen, “has been a great personal growth for me, trying out acting and singing and writing, things that I’d never attempted before. And the friendships that have formed over the years are a blessing.”

“I’ve been in the group a very long time, ages,” says Kate. “The whole group is friends of ours, and part of our family.”

The same themes come out again and again – a place to feel accepted, to discover new skills, to build friendships.

“The City of Voices embodies community,” says Artistic Director Myf Powell. “We are a group of individuals who are dedicated to each other, who listen and support, who offer and prompt, who comfort and cajole with spirit, humour and Heart.”

Bravo, City of Voices, for navigating the rough seas of 2020-2021, and may your ship sail onwards with mast held high.
